DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3, 10-12, 14-17, 23, and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wood et al. (US Patent No. 6,705,950).

Wood et al. disclose an oscillating product that includes a portion (20) for receiving a person and further includes an entertainment device (38), the entertainment device (30) comprising a mobile arm (36) rotatably coupled to the entertainment device (38); a motion conversion device (70) coupled to the entertainment device (38) and the mobile arm (36) to convert an oscillatory motion of the entertainment device into a rotational motion of the mobile arm (36); and a mounting member (56) to secure the entertainment device to the oscillating product (10), wherein upon securing the mounting member (56) to the oscillating product, the oscillating product (10) conveys oscillatory motion to the entertainment device (38); the mounting member (56) includes at least one fastener (74) to connect the entertainment device (38) to the oscillating product (10); the mobile arm includes at least one object secured along the mobile arm; the mobile arm includes a first object secured proximate a first terminal end of the mobile arm and a second object secured proximate a second terminal end of the mobile arm (col. 5, lines 54-62); the first object is heavier than the second object (col. 5, lines 41-44 and 62-65).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4-~~8~~⁹, and 18-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wood et al. (US Patent No. 6,705,950) in view of Yano (US Patent No. 5,820,060).

Wood et al. disclose the claimed invention except for a gear assembly effecting rotational motion of the mobile arm in a single direction with respect to the mounting member in response to oscillatory motion of the entertainment device; the motion conversion device further includes a weighted gear housing that rotates in response to oscillatory motion of the entertainment device such that rotational motion of the gear housing control operation of the gear assembly to effect rotational motion of the mobile arm; the driving pawl and the second pawl move in opposing directions with respect to each other during oscillatory motion of the entertainment device.

Yano teaches a weighted gear housing (10,140); a gear assembly having a ratchet gear (52); a driving pawl (36); a second pawl (38); the driving pawl (36) and the second pawl (38) move in opposing directions (col. 5, lines 19-22); a clutch (116)

Art Unit: 3711

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the claimed gear assembly as taught by Yano, since such a modification would permit rotational motion of an element.

Furthermore, it would have been obvious to provide a clutch as taught by Yano, since such a modification would permit engagement or disengagement of gear components.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
